

Types of Sentences

- declarative: statement of fact without strong emotion and ends with a period;
 - My favorite food is cheesecake.
 - Bill threw the ball to first base.
- interrogatory: asks a question and end with a question mark;
 - What time will you be home?
 - Did you feed the dog?
- imperative: make a command or request and end with a period or an exclamation point;
 - No talking until everyone finishes the assignment.
 - Pass the ketchup, please.
- exclamatory: communicates a high level of excitement or emotion and ends in an exclamation point;
 - She hit me for no reason!
 - I was so excited I could burst!

Types of Sentences

- declarative: statement of fact without strong emotion and ends with a period;
 - My favorite food is cheesecake.
 - Bill threw the ball to first base.
- interrogatory: asks a question and end with a question mark;
 - What time will you be home?
 - Did you feed the dog?
- imperative: make a command or request and end with a period or an exclamation point;
 - No talking until everyone finishes the assignment.
 - Pass the ketchup, please.
- exclamatory: communicates a high level of excitement or emotion and ends in an exclamation point;
 - She hit me for no reason!
 - I was so excited I could burst!