

dress I bought you three years ago?" . . .

not meekly bow their heads to the valiant man who roars, "Where is that have awakened to the fact that the "superior sex" stuff is all bunk. They will support themselves better than can many of the men of their own age. They will girls will no longer marry men who can merely support them—they can time doing it. That seems to be common everywhere.

same. They all wanted to know how to make a living—and to have a good summer, and they thought that most of the girls in school would do the not one of whom had any need to work, all intended to find jobs during the friends burst in—flappers all. We got to talking and I found that these girls, bank on the Pacific Coast when his daughter and several of her high-school She is no clinging vine. I was in the office of the president of a good-sized independence and her will to be prosperous.

The outstanding characteristic of the flapper is not her uniform but her are all flappers.

The rich flapper has better clothing than the poor one, but a block away they rich flapper and the poor flapper—national advertising has attended to that. wiped them out. There is no distinction in the cut of clothing between the rich flapper and the town flapper and the farm flapper—the automobile has distinction between the dress goes, they are a simplified national product. . . . There is no difference as dress size, flappers at a hundred feet are as standardized as Ford cars. As per on the wall.

that you can remember what city you are in only by taking a local newspaper as a chain hotel—and incidentally hotel bedrooms are becoming so alike The flapper of to-day is a very different person. In dress she is as standard often she graduated a household drudge.

If the accounts are true, dragged herself off day by day to work until some one came along and married her. Sometimes she was a Cinderella, but more often she graduated a household drudge.

As you read, take note of the outstanding characteristics of a flapper. Then answer the questions that follow.

GUIDED READING

"the flapper is today our most important national institution," magazine, Samuel Crowther concludes that selection from a 1925 article in Collier's a woman's place in society. In the following skirts, long hair, and long-held ideas about liberated woman. She was free from long The flapper was the 1920s version of the standardized: made the same

>About the Selection

What Is a Flapper?

standardized: made the same

Primary Source Reading 15-1 (continued) ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

The flapper wants to look well, and she is willing to provide for herself—employers everywhere told me that the women were doing better work than the men, and they do seem to be mentally more alert. All of which means that the man who marries the modern flapper has got to provide for her—she will not be merely an unpaid servant. And this in turn means that the men have got to work—which nothing better could happen for the country. The flapper is to-day our most important national institution. . . .

The will to be prosperous has brought prosperity. We have practically no poverty, and I judge that at least two-thirds of what little we have is voluntary.

Source: "Aren't We All Rich Now?" Collier's, November 7, 1925.

READER RESPONSE

Directions: Answer the following questions on the lines below.

1. How do employers feel about flappers?

2. What effect does the flapper's economic independence have on relations between men and women?

3. What two traits are common to all flappers?

4. Critical Thinking What do you think the writer means when he says the flapper is "as standardized as a chain hotel"?

5. Critical Thinking What is the author's point of view about the flapper?
