Mission Statement

“Language and communication are at the heart of the human experience. The United States must educate students who are equipped linguistically and culturally to communicate successfully in a pluralistic American society and abroad. This imperative envisions a future in which ALL students will develop and maintain proficiency in English and at least one other language, modern, or classical.”

Preparing for the 21st Century

New Jersey World Language Core Curriculum Standards

In 1995, New Jersey enacted the Strategic Plan for Systemic Improvement of Education to ensure the development and assessment of rigorous academic standards throughout the state. On May 1, 1996, the New Jersey State Board of Education adopted 61 core curriculum content standards in seven academic and five workplace readiness areas. The inclusion of two world language standards represented a key moment in the “evolution” of the study of world languages in New Jersey. For the first time in this state’s history, World Languages was recognized as an essential component of the core curriculum for all students. The study of world languages has assumed a new role as an integral part of the school curriculum that, as in other content areas, will span the entire spectrum of K-12 education. This new scope and sequence of language instruction emphasizes knowledge about second language acquisition, the importance of communication, and the relationship between culture and language as a new basis for program development. The ability “to communicate at a basic literacy level in at least one language other than English” (Standard 7.1) and “to demonstrate an understanding of the interrelationship between language and culture” (Standard 7.2) is now considered to be one of the hallmarks of a well-educated citizen in the state of New Jersey.

Philosophy

World languages represent a key component of the educational process in a global society. As we move through the new millennium, global communication becomes increasingly important. A broad global environment and increasingly sophisticated technology make it necessary for us to become citizens of the world who are able to express ourselves in more than one language. By interweaving language and culture, we seek to prepare students to live and work in a multi-faceted society. World language study actively promotes the students' proficiency and develops their knowledge of and sensitivity to other cultures.

Acquiring a second language involves a progression of activities from comprehensible input of authentic language through guided and/or structured activities to comprehensible expressive output. In order to facilitate a continuous learning process, the vocabulary, structures, and functions are re-entered and spiraled throughout the program. A variety of strategies which target different learning styles and multiple intelligences address the various needs of the wide range of students. The overall goal is for students to participate actively in the learning experience and to be able to use the target language for meaningful communication. This is successfully achieved through the TPR approach. The Total Physical Response method provides students with an authentic and interactive approach of learning a second language.

As we move away from a textbook approach. A theme-based instruction curriculum focuses on communicative proficiency in the target language. Which presents meaningful linguistic and cultural content, through a variety of age appropriate learning activities, designed to motivate and actively engage the students as contributors to the learning process.

The goal of the Orange Township World Languages program is to prepare its students for authentic second language use in real world situations and to encourage the appreciation of other cultures. By learning how to interact appropriately with peoples of diverse cultures, the students can become productive members of the world community, as well as, the ethnically diverse neighborhoods of the world.

Introduction

The World Language Curriculum K to 12th grade has been written to serve as a guide to ALL the languages taught in the Orange Public Schools.

This Curriculum is based on Thematic Units. There are four thematic units for each grade. All thematic units contain different topics that have been compiled and carefully planned to create a theme.

All thematic units have time lines and a final assessment for the completion of the theme. The summative assessment consists of a final project that is based on a written and oral presentation. A rubric has been created to evaluate the final project of each theme.

The format of this Curriculum consists of:

- Scope and sequence: each topic outlines the vocabulary and activities for the teacher to follow.
- Culture: cultural capsules (perspectives, products, practices) from the target countries relevant to the theme have been incorporated to each unit.
- Content Connections: connections of content disciplines that are studied in the unit are outlined.
- Grammar: general grammar points are suggested to the languages that may apply.
- Assessment formative & summative: formative assessments are suggested after each topic throughout the unit. A summative and final project is provided for the completion of each unit.
- Resources: materials needed during the unit are suggested.
- Technology: the use of technology and research based projects are recommended and incorporated in each unit.

Enduring Understanding: Student will understand how to interpreting spoken and written language is essential to good communication and building rapport; communicating in at least one other language is essential to gaining knowledge of other cultures (traditions, products and perspectives); They will understand how important it's to compare English with other languages to understanding the nature of language and other cultures. Student will also understand how the history of certain cultural landmarks in areas where the target language is spoken influences the history of other places where the target language is not spoken.

Essential Questions:

1. How does my understanding of structure affect my ability to communicate?
2. What is the role of the conditional tense in the expression of past actions in contrary to fact conditions?
3. How is traveling in a target speaking country different from traveling in the United States?
4. What financial information facilitates travel to a foreign country?

Learning Objectives - Students will be able to express and give suggestions and advice to a friend who is going to visit a target country, ask questions and provide responses based on suggested topics. Students will assess, in the target language, the relationship between environments and products of the target-speaking cultures (e.g., relationship between deforestation, pollution, geography, natural resources, politics, society, or migration and products). They will interpret the performing arts of the target-speaking cultures (e.g., music, dance, movies and plays). Compare the history of important landmarks in target countries and other countries, and give a presentation on an environmental issue in a target country.
